Clients look to Mark Wiranowski for sound corporate and commercial counsel that makes good business sense. Whether on a complex transaction or a company's first seed financing, he brings nuanced legal advice, an eye for strategy and a drive to get the deal done. Mark focuses on the energy, communications and information technology industries, representing a wide range of companies and investors in financings, mergers and acquisitions, project development, joint ventures, spin-outs, commercial transactions, infrastructure and technology transactions and licensing. He also acts as outside general counsel for a range of emerging companies.

Mark draws on a diverse wealth of professional experience – in finance, consulting, executive leadership training, non-profit development and even delinquent youth programs – to help him understand the business and interpersonal contexts for clients' legal needs. It is why clients seek him out to handle novel transactions with complex features, including large capital investment, regulatory overlays, business and technology innovations, multiple parties and long-term relationships and assets.
