Ashley joins WBK's Washington, D.C. office after receiving a Juris Doctor from Northwestern Pritzker School of Law.

During law school, Ashley was an extern at both Accenture and Sony Pictures Entertainment for their Motion Pictures Legal Team. She also interned at the United States Air Force Court of Criminal Appeals. Ashley served on the executive boards of the Latino Law Students Association, the Arts & Entertainment Law Society, and the Disability Law Society. She volunteered for public interest law firm Mississippi Center for Justice. She received the Theresa D. Cooper Diversity & Inclusion Award for her leadership and earned public service recognition. She was a part of the inaugural cohort for Northwestern's Entertainment, Media, Sports Law, and Business program.

Ashley graduated from State University of New York at Old Westbury's Honors College, summa cum laude, with a B.A. in philosophy and religion. There, she received the President's Medal for Scholarship, which is the highest honor bestowed by the college to a single student in the graduating class. Outside of work, Ashley enjoys cooking, reading graphic novels, and spending time with family.
