Belinda protects her clients' intellectual property rights at all stages of their brand's life cycle, from counseling and clearance to trademark prosecution, enforcement, and litigation. She has a wealth of experience managing large domestic and international trademark portfolios. Her national litigation experience includes cases involving trademark, trade dress, unfair competition, domain name, copyright, counterfeiting, and false advertising in more than 40 federal court districts and divisions, as well as before the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board.

Belinda also has extensive experience protecting non-traditional marks on a global scale, including single-color, sound, and motion marks. She is a frequent author and speaker on IP issues, has served on numerous International Trademark Association committees, and co-chaired the DC Bar Intellectual Property Community Steering Committee. Repeatedly ranked by the World Trademark Review in the WTR 1000, as well as by "Super Lawyers," and by Who's Who Legal, Belinda is admitted to practice in multiple jurisdictions and numerous Federal courts.
