Christine enjoys the diverse array of transactional, policy and regulatory matters on which she works. In her dynamic transactions practice, she advises large and small communications companies on mergers and acquisitions, spectrum leasing, public and private financing transactions, and other commercial transactions. She helps clients negotiate and resolve issues, drafts and advises on transaction documents, and provides guidance regarding associated regulatory issues and approvals. Christine also provides strategic advice to service providers, infrastructure companies and industry organizations to promote policies that foster infrastructure deployment, and counsels them on infrastructure regulation and compliance with the FCC's environmental/historic preservation rules. Christine chairs the firm's Tower Siting and Infrastructure practice and leads the industry's largest players in the most important FCC proceedings, including those that recently have resulted in significant streamlining of the Federal and State review processes related to infrastructure deployment.

Clients also rely on Christine's extensive experience with FCC spectrum auctions. She has been actively involved in wireless auctions for 25 years, advising clients on intricacies of the FCC's highly complex auction rules. Assisting clients both large and small, she has worked with them in qualifying to bid in spectrum auctions for Designated Entity benefits, as well as on investing in entities that qualify for such benefits and in successfully securing their licenses post-auction. Christine also is WBK's Administrative Partner, overseeing the firm's operations and financial performance, and a member of the firm's strategic Management Committee.
