Christine provides counsel on a diverse array of transactional, policy and regulatory matters. In her dynamic transactions practice, she provides strategic advice to communications companies on mergers and acquisitions, spectrum leasing, public and private financing transactions, and other commercial transactions. Christine chairs the firm's Tower Siting and Infrastructure practice, and regularly advocates on behalf of service providers, infrastructure companies and industry organizations to promote policies that foster infrastructure deployment. Those efforts have resulted in significant streamlining of the Federal and State review processes related to infrastructure deployment. She also counsels clients on infrastructure regulations and compliance with the FCC's environmental/historic preservation rules, including development and implementation of compliance plans and navigation of adversarial proceedings related to infrastructure siting.

Clients also rely on Christine's extensive experience with FCC spectrum auctions. She has been actively involved in wireless auctions for nearly 30 years, advising clients on the intricacies of the FCC's highly complex auction rules. She has counseled clients both large and small on the FCC's prohibited communications rule, qualifying to bid in spectrum auctions with Designated Entity benefits, an investing in entities that qualify for such benefits.

Christine also is WBK's Administrative Partner, overseeing the firm's operations and financial performance, and a member of the firm's strategic Management Committee. In her free time, Christine enjoys travel and spending time with family and friends.
