Emilie helps media and communications companies develop and implement policy initiatives and comply with government regulations. She provides strategic advice and compliance-oriented analysis on a broad range of policy, regulatory, and transactional matters before the FCC, FTC, and the NTIA, including on spectrum policy and wireless regulatory issues, as well as on issues affecting the video marketplace and emerging technologies like the Internet of Things. Emilie also guides clients grappling with emerging legal and policy issues in the U.S. and abroad related to privacy, data security, and consumer protection.

Emilie draws upon experience gained through internships with the FCC Enforcement Bureau and the NTIA, as well as her clerkships in the offices of FCC Commissioner Robert McDowell and FTC Chairman Maureen Ohlhausen.
